New Introductions 2015

Comeback classics

Usually, 'if it isn't broke then don't fix it', but with our latest decor introductions, we've developed timeless classics from Oak to Walnut and even Hickory to create 6 exciting new woodgrain designs that bring a new level of realism to popular species.

With these new introductions also sees the arrival of a solid colour that is highly versatile and provides an elegant contrast in combination with woodgrains and more subtle tones.

Also we feature a series of recent introductions with a highly realistic finish and deeply brushed texture that creates a realism evident of veneer or timber.

U636 as an accent colour in combination with H3710 and U702

A highly versatile colour that's right on trend.

A new combination colour (that isn't white or grey), but is highly versatile, with long lasting appeal was our brief when developing U636 Fjord.

Cooler grey tones with hints of blue have gained traction in Europe and convey a sense of elegance and confidence.

The neutral colour tone makes it an ideal combination with other solid colours and many of our woodgrain decors.

H1399 ST10 Truffle Riverside Oak

An 'on trend' grey oak, ideal for combinations.

A rustic oak with knots and imperfections – H1399 ST10 Truffle Riverside Oak is a decor designed that combines well with light shades from white to grey due to its colour arrangement and with its ST10 surface texture, it creates a highly realistic finish.

H3710 ST9 Natural Carini Walnut

H3710 in combination with U636

A classic walnut with natural tones.

H3710 ST9 Natural Carini Walnut is a highly detailed yet elegant design with highly natural tones, which allows it to combine with whites and greys from light to dark as a contrast to the decor's natural brown tones. An equally complementary combination with U636 ST9 Fjord helps create a little more accent.

H3730 ST10 Natural Hickory

A highly natural hickory with an interplay of colour.

With the decor development Hickory we present a wood reproduction which sets itself apart from the types of wood currently found in the market. H3730 Natural Hickory reminiscent of crown-cut oak, can create many combination options with various solid colours due to its imperfections and subtle interplay of colours.

H3342 ST28 Sepia Gladstone Oak

H3342 in combination with U727

An authentic oak with a contemporary twist.

The fourth decor to be added to the Gladstone series, Sepia Gladstone Oak provides an answer to the current 'black/white' combination trend and provides an 'on trend' contemporary twist to an authentic finish that can combine with fashionable solid colours from white to grey as well as with elegant accent colours such as U636 ST9 Fjord.

Two striking oak designs that are a true representation of solid wood.

This lively oak decor, enhanced by cracks and natural markings is a true representation of solid wood, in keeping with the current trend to create a natural contrast in furniture in combination with neutral solid colours.

With its synchronised ST37 texture, it creates a depth and realism evident of timber.

H3450 ST36 White Fleetwood

H3450 in combination with U636

A series of highly realistic, versatile finishes with a deeply brushed texture.

The new 'Fleetwood' decors, with their deeply brushed ST36 surface, reproduce a sand-blasted timber effect and can provide a vintage or modern style.

H3451 ST36 Champagne Fleetwood

H3451 in combination with U702

The subtle interplay of tone and texture can be brought to life when the right combination of plain colour is applied with popular solid colours from white to grey working extremely well.

With a double paper layer and highly realistic gloss levels they create depth and realism evident of veneer or timber.
